Data on Seed Supply Sought

Washington, April 29.—The appointment of a committee of Department of Agriculture experts to gather information regarding available supplies of seeds for staple food crops was announced today by Secretary Houston. The committee is headed by L. M. Estabrook, chief of the department's Bureau of Plant Industry, and R. A. Oakley, of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

New York Farms Need 50,000 Boys For This Season

Preliminary Census Report Shows Great Shortage of Hired Men

Hope Is in School Lads

Statistics Obtained from 126,596 Farms in Thirty-two Counties

Ithaca, N. Y., April 29.—Nearly 50,000 more men and boys are needed by the farmers of New York State for this season, according to the survey of the agricultural resources of the state, which was made public here today at the New York State College of Agriculture.

Preliminary census returns indicate that the farmers of New York are greatly increasing the acreage of food crops this year. Labor is the limiting factor. There are only 84 per cent as many hired men as there were last year, when there was also a shortage. At present there are only two "hired men" for each five farms. Schoolboys are expected to furnish most of the 50,000 quota which is needed. If the preliminary census, the increases in the price of milk and eggs have been small compared with the increases in the price of other foods. As a consequence, there is a decrease in the number of cows being raised. The census conclusion is that "if we are to maintain our supply of milk and eggs, the prices should be raised."

10,000 Horses for Sale

The farmers of New York have about 10,000 horses for sale, in addition to the number wanted by farmers, the census shows.

The Federal government wants them for military purposes they can be obtained in this state. Large numbers of cows and heifers, hogs and pigs are wanted, but in some counties many are for sale, so that there are enough to supply all the present demands when interchange is effected through the local county officers of the New York State Food Supply Commission and otherwise.

The census shows that there are enough seed beans for sale to supply all the demands, but there is a shortage of buckwheat seed. There is not quite enough potato seed—about 3 per cent short of the demand in the state—to plant all of the proposed increase in acreage.

Clinton is the only county so far reporting as having a considerable surplus of seed potatoes for sale, the surplus being amounting to nearly 10,000 bushels. The census figures show that seed generally is not well distributed.

Exchange To Be Aided

Exchange between farmers who have seed to sell and farmers who desire to purchase is to be effected through the local offices of the Food Supply Commission. The supply of spring wheat and corn must be obtained from seed men or from without the state, as there is no surplus in any of the counties.

The census shows that farmers have adjusted their cropping plans to meet the emergency situation in a sound and intelligent manner. There is a proposed increase of 56 per cent in the acreage devoted to corn. Other grain crops show proposed increases of 10 to 20 per cent. The wheat acreage is 50 per cent more than it was seven years ago and 11 per cent more than last year. Preliminary figures show an increase of from 40 to 80 per cent in the proposed acreage of beans, vegetables and cabbage. These increases are being obtained by the ploughing up of hay lands.

The census indicates that as there will be a falling off in the amount of fertilizer used because of difficulty of getting shipments, fertilizers, seed, manure and other farm materials should immediately be given preferential freight shipments, the report declares.

Preliminary census returns indicate that approximately 8,000 persons will be needed to work in the farm home, helping to board the farm labor. The report is based on returns from 126,596 farms in 32 counties, and a complete report will be issued within a few days. Dr. E. Warden, of Cornell, had charge of summarizing the records.

Gary Garden Plan Inspires Families To Start Planting

Inspired by the operation of school gardens under the Gary plan, scores of families in the neighborhoods of the several public schools where the Gary system is in operation are preparing to aid Uncle Sam by planting gardens.

The Gary plan of education is said to be particularly well adapted to the use of school children in increasing the food output. The operation of the system is well exemplified in Public School 45, in the Bronx, where pupils are cultivating six acres of land. For two years this school has had a garden, planted and cultivated by its pupils under the Gary system.

The Gary plan divides the pupils of a school into three shifts. One-third of the time is given to study, one-third to physical work and one-third to recreation. In the schools where gardens are cultivated the pupils till them during the period devoted to physical work. This results in the gardens having continuous care for about six hours a day. In schools not under the Gary system the pupils can care for their garden only after school hours, which does not yield the best results.

Public School 45 Leads

The work of Principal Angelo Patri of P. S. 45 and his pupils has aroused the enthusiasm of scores of families in the vicinity of Hoffman and 156th Streets, where the school is located, and Park Commissioner Whittle has allotted them plots in Bronx Park, near by, for cultivation.

Since Public School 45 has been teaching gardening to the pupils of five hundred children have been graduated with a practical working knowledge of farming and gardening. In addition to practical experience the pupils obtain the necessary scientific knowledge in the classroom.

In addition to their work in the garden the boys of the school have found time to build a greenhouse for the development of young plants and the storage of seed during the winter. They are now planting one-fourth of an acre in potatoes, and Principal Patri expects to get 120 bushels from 20 bushels of seed.

Have One Big Plot

Under the old plan of school gardening each child was allotted an individual plot with little practical results. Under the Gary system one large garden is cultivated by the entire school. Advocates of the Gary system declare that if it were introduced in all the schools and gardening carried on as it is in Public School 45 it would be much to help solve the food problem. The Gary system is now in effect in half a dozen New York schools.

Great standing armies are the product of monarchial militarism. Instead of guaranteeing peace, they provoke war. But a national reserve of citizen soldiery is the bulwark of democracy.

"To provide for the common defence"—now and in the years to come—will you, young men of America, make secure the future of this democracy, in war and peace, by earnestly supporting the President in his effort to establish at once such a democratic system of universal military training under Federal control in this country as for seventy years insured the peace of the little republic of Switzerland?

Says U. S. Must Feed Germany And Allies, Too

Houston's Aid Calls Crisis Greatest Since Biblical Famine

Crop Prospects Poor Vrooman Hopes Producers Will Win War Before Men Fire a Shot

The United States is facing the greatest food crisis since the Biblical days of famine, according to Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, who spoke last night on the food situation in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

With the world's food crop short this country would be called upon, he said, to feed not only ourselves, our Allies and the neutral nations, but also the starving millions of the Central Powers in case peace should come within a year.

"Famine is lurking behind the battle lines in Europe," Mr. Vrooman asserted. "There is starvation in Germany and every other nation in Europe is on war rations. The wheat prospects in this country are the poorest in many years. In the Argentine the crop also is short. The production and conservation of food is now this country's greatest responsibility."

"When Congress voted the $7,000,000 war loan it served notice on the world that this country had unwritten victory for the Allies. But they need food greater than money."

"Our army of food producers is already on the march. They are fighting their battles in the furrows, and I hope they will win the war before our boys are shot in the trenches. "It is entirely possible the Germans will soon do with the Hohenzollerns what the Russians have done with the Romanoffs. President Wilson's address to Congress asking for the war, the greatest state paper ever written by any living man, has exerted a subtle force abroad that is slowly disintegrating the Central Powers. If the Prussian autocracy is overthrown and a democracy established the Allied nations will greet the German people with outstretched hands."

War bread of whole wheat would soon supplant white bread on every table in this country, Mr. Vrooman predicted. The use of 81 per cent of the wheat in war bread, instead of 72 per cent in white bread, would save the country from 100,000 to 50,000,000 bushels a year, he asserted.

"Waste is our national vice," Mr. Vrooman continued. "Let us overcome it now before hunger forces us to. Do it as a privilege, not from compulsion. The time has come to put living on a scientific basis in this country. One way to do this is by conserving food in the household. You women, go home and tell your cooks they must cut down on their husbands' demand twice as much on your tables as they need. Germany's mortality rate shot down when she cut her rations in half."

Not an American soldier who goes to the front will be wasted as a "cannon fodder," in the opinion of Mr. Vrooman. The greatest minds in the country were at work to conduct the war on a scientific basis, he said.

"We want every American boy who goes into the trenches to be as thoroughly trained as the Kaiser's men," he warned.

Maine Seed Potatoes For N. Y. Farmers

Albany, April 29.—In carrying out its plans for increasing production, the New York State Food Supply Commission has purchased twenty cars of Maine seed potatoes for distribution through the state. It has options on twenty-one additional carloads.

The commission's investigation showed a strong demand for seed potatoes, and one of its first steps was to obtain a supply in addition to that available in this state.

"Seed potatoes will be furnished in carlots to applicants at cost price, with the freight added as far as the supply the commission now has options on will go," it announces. Applications for these potatoes may be filed at the local or county offices of the commission or at the headquarters office, the Department of Agriculture, Albany.

The first lot will go to Jefferson, Oswego, Allegany and Delaware counties.

'Capt.' Ball, Indictment Expert, Dies Suddenly

William Staughton Ball, Assistant in the Office of H. Snowden Marshall, United States Attorney, and for more than twenty-three years a familiar in the Federal courts as "Captain" Ball, died yesterday at his home, 207 East Seventy-second Street, Brooklyn, in his eighty-second year.

Mr. Ball was born at Albion, N. Y., on March 12, 1836. His early life was spent in the South, where his father, Harvey Ball, was a college professor in Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi. Returning to New York State he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1858. At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Ball enlisted as a private in Company C, 4th New York Artillery, being first lieutenant, and was engaged in active service he served as judge advocate in his artillery brigade.

In 1867 he went to Charleston, S. C., serving the reconstruction government as assistant judge advocate of North and South Carolina. Settling two years later at Greensboro, N. C., Mr. Ball became editor of "The North State," a weekly newspaper, and subsequently assistant United States Attorney. In 1893 he returned to New York State and became connected with the office of the United States Attorney, serving under General Burnett, Henry W. Wise, Henry L. Stanton and H. Snowden Marshall. His specialty was the drawing of indictments, and recently Mr. Ball expressed his gratification at being "so fortunate during the past year in securing as to have no one of them set aside for any omission or structural defect, although many have been attacked by the highest legal talent of New York."

Funeral services will be held to-night at 8 o'clock at his late residence, the Rev. George T. Eddy, of Millburn, N. J., his nephew, will officiate. Interment will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Levittown, N. Y., where Mrs. Mary Catherine Ball, his wife, was buried about a month ago.
